

FOND MEMORIES –

The drive-in theatres were a godsend in the 50's when we were growing up. Tuesday nights at the West View Drive-In, located at 86th and Hickman Road, was always 'Buck Night'. It didn't matter how many people were in the car, you got in to watch the movie for $1.00. So on Tuesday, when we got the paper, we were checking to see what was playing at the drive-in and, only if it was something that we thought Dad would like to see, we would ask about going. The answer early in the day was "We'll have to see" - Especially if Dad was working in the field - of course he had to milk the cows, feed them as well as the pigs before we could go. If there was any chance that we might go, Mom would make us take an afternoon nap. We were usually so excited about going that I don't think anyone slept.

We would begin again late afternoon and run, or if we had our bicycles, ride down to the field to ask Dad if we could go to the Drive-In. His answer was usually, "Whatever Mom says". Dad would be at the barn doing chores when we would start again to ask about going. Mom would respond with "ask you Dad". So off to the barn we went, then back to the house to ask Mom. This would go back and forth several times until we got the o.k. We finally got smart and one of us would be down at the barn with one at the house and we'd holler back and forth or ride our bicycles. We usually went every Tuesday.

To help Dad with his chores we kids would go to the barn and put the feed out for the cows and make the slop for the pigs so he wouldn't have to do that - (and we wouldn't be late for the movie!). Years later when were reminiscing about this, Mom said the reason she made us ask Dad was because he was working in the field all day besides doing the chores and she didn't know if he would be too tired to go. We would usually take our own candy or treats to eat. Dad always liked the Western movies so it usually was a given that we would go.

Bless Mom and Dad for our fond memories.

Congratulations! – to the Johnston High School Volley Ball team for their outstanding year. The team placed three members on the All-CIML (Central Iowa Metro League) First Team with three Elite picks: setter Kari Queck, outside Hitter Abby Sonner, and middle hitter Taylor Knuth. . Johnston is top-ranked, the defending state champion and won the Central Conference Title this year. Kate Nielsen and Tory Knuth were named to the second team with Taylor Chestnut and Ashley Sweet as honorable mention. Johnston Coach, Rick Brooks, was named Coach of the Year! In the State Volley Ball tournament the girls placed second in their class this past weekend. Abby Sonner was named to the 4-A All-Tournament team. WOW! We are very proud of our Johnston youth.

THANK YOU to all who have renewed their memberships.

“Behavioral scientists and our instincts tell us that compliments affect behavior far more powerfully than criticism. We all need to bask in the warmth and approval of someone we respect, otherwise our personal dignity becomes seriously endangered. We have become so unaccustomed to compliments that they seem to embarrass both the giver and the receiver. We are quick to criticize, yet so guarded with praise. If the new outfit looks great, what harm can come from saying so? If the hairdo suits, why not comment? If someone is doing a good job, it can only reinforce the person to tell them so. Praise, like love, is only meaningful when freely shared.” Also:

“Forgiveness begins where blame ends. Forgiveness comes only when we can identify with others and admit to our own imperfection and an equal capacity for wrongdoing.”

Leo Buscaglia - from his book: BORN TO LOVE.

“One forgives to the degree that one loves.” LaRocheaucould

Just as we appreciate visitors, those near-by Historical Societies would also appreciate visitors and there are many choices in our ‘neighborhood’. The JSBS sends complimentary newsletters to the Urbandale Historical Society(4010 – 70th Avenue); Slater Area Historical Society; Ankeny Area Historical Society; Big Creek Historical Society. News relating to these groups is frequently published in the newspaper – i.e.: On November 12, 2008: The Des Moines Register editorial staff printed: “A rose to the Big Creek Historical Society and Polk City for restoring the town’s 1863 City Hall. We earlier gave West Des Moines a rose for preserving its original City Hall from the 1890’s, noting that city’s history stretching back to the steam-powered railroad era. Big Creek’s seat of government, dating to the Civil War, has that beat.”

*“Where the northern ocean darkens.
Where the rolling rivers run.
Past the cold and empty headlands.
Toward the slow & westering sun.
There our fathers, long before us,
Armed with freedom, faced the deep:
What they won with love & labor.
Let our children watch and keep.”*

At 85, Fern Michael knows that Johnston has not always been the mostly affluent and booming suburb that it has become today. Her great-great grandparents, Ezekiel and Mary Hunt, came to the area in September 1846, just two months before Iowa was named a state.

"My family was among the first white settlers in the area," Michael says. Her family started a sawmill business at the corner of Merle Hay Road and Northwest Beaver Drive, where Iowa Pallets Ltd., is located today.

Johnston is now one of the fastest-growing communities in Iowa, with new businesses eagerly joining major employer Pioneer Hi-Bred International Inc. Camp Dodge military base overlooks Saylorville

Incorporated: 1969
Population: 13,596

Lake on the north edge of town, and the manicured plots of Men's Garden Clubs of America grace the community.

Green Days is celebrated each June in Johnston with food vendors, rides and a parade. Many residents also enjoy spending time year-round on the trail near Beaver Creek. ▶

In 1846, Fern Michael's relatives settled in what now is Johnston. She commissioned this carving in the cemetery where her ancestors are buried.

"A group of students were asked to list what they thought were the present seven wonders of the world. Though there was some disagreement, the following got the most votes: Egypt's Great Pyramids, Taj Mahal, Grand Canyon, Panama Canal, Empire State Building; St. Peter's Basilica and China's Great Wall. While gathering the votes the teacher noted that one quiet student hadn't turned in her paper yet. So she asked the girl if she was having trouble with her list. The girl replied "yes, a little. I couldn't quite make up my mind because there were so many". The teacher said "Well, tell us what you have and maybe we can help." The girl hesitated, then read: "I think the Seven Wonders of the World are: to see, to taste, to touch, to hear, to feel, to laugh, or smile and most of all – to love. The room was so full of silence you could have heard a pin drop.
