President's Column:

We are working to preserve our artifacts for future generations to enjoy. Jan Jensen is very knowledgeable about preservation procedures and is working hard to get this mammoth task completed. Grant monies were used to purchase two dress forms. One has been used to display Shirley Simpson's wedding dress.

The Museum recently received a Bravo Grant for $4000 to be used to upgrade current displays and create new ones. Displays will be created in triplicate: one for display off-site, one on display at the Museum, and one to be kept on file.

Sycamore Park Ballroom and Picnic Grounds Plagued by Flood, Thieves, and the Law

Sycamore Park Surrounded by Flood Waters

Sycamore Park was a privately owned park located near the current Sycamore Access to the Des Moines River on N.W. 66th Avenue. Early directions stated, "Sycamore Park is 7 miles N.W. of Des Moines, Go North on Merle Hay Road to Johnston Station, turn East."

The park featured a screened-in pavilion where dances, picnics and parties were held. It was called "the poor man's place to dance" and rumored to be a place that Ronald Reagan took some of his dates.

News accounts reveal that other activities also took place at the pavilion. In August of 1939 State and Polk County law officials raided a picnic held at the pavilion and seized six slot machines and a blackjack table. Another gambling raid in 1957 netted a blackjack table, a dice game, playing cards and cash.

The park was beset upon not only by the law but also by thieves. In 1946 someone made off with the grand piano, five electric fans, 15 benches, 25 tables, the railing around the dance floor and the wood from the bandstand. Thieves struck again in 1958 taking two furnaces, an exhaust fan and two stoves.

The pavilion was destroyed by fire in 1961 and was not rebuilt. The land is currently a wildlife refuge and a part of the Des Moines River greenbelt.

Much of the above information was taken from a Des Moines Register article entitled: Sycamore Park Had Its Problems.

Just a Corn Field? by Karl Jarvis

Plump golden seed in the warm earth prest
Clear green rows on the earth's sweet breast
Stalks reaching up with their leaves adrape
God's gift to man in this sweet clean shape.
Rich gold grain fills the world's empty bowls
But God given beauty fills our own hungry souls.

Karl Jarvis graduated Magna Cum Laude from University of California Berkeley. Karl and his wife Revo moved to Johnston in 1941. Karl worked for the next 26 years as a plant breeder for Pioneer Seed Corn. Their three sons, Mark, Don, and Ken graduated from Johnston High School.

Beaver Creek Reaches Second-Highest Stage Ever

Torrential rain beginning on August 8th, 2010, and continuing for three days sent Beaver Creek over its banks and caused considerable flooding in Johnston. The official rain gauge on Beaver Creek in Johnston registered 10.18 inches for the three-day period. Many residents battled water in basements and shop vacs were in high demand. Flooding also occurred in low lying rural and industrial areas in and around Johnston. Water poured across N.W. 62nd Avenue causing the road to be closed for three days. The highest water level recorded for Beaver Creek was 16.58 feet on July 10, 1993. The water level on August 8, 2010 was 14.90 feet.
